

The only operating pulp mill in the Territory is located at Speel River, about thirty-five miles south of Juneau, with a daily production of 40 tons of pulp. In the Juneau District are at least nine billion board feet of timber available for lumber and pulp purposes, which, with the developed water power of 26,000 h.p. in the district, and the estimated undeveloped water power of 174,640 h.p., cannot lead to other than the early establishment of a great pulp and paper industry in the district, of which the Alaska Pulp & Paper Company's plant at Speel River is only the forerunner.

Juneau is a livable community, having water works, electric lights, concrete buildings, first-class hotels, good streets, stores with large stocks of merchandise, and a population of high character, the majority of whom are Americans originally, hailing from practically every state in the Union. Juneau's public school building is a three-story concrete building erected in 1917 at a cost of $75,000, and at present is estimated to be worth $125,000. The school employs eighteen teachers and offers courses ranging from kindergarten through the high school, whose graduates are accredited to the universities of the Pacific Coast states. The municipal government spends practically $35,000 a year in the maintenance and upkeep of the school, which has an attendance of about 400 pupils.

There are churches of several denominations, including Presbyterian, Methodist, Roman Catholic, Greek Catholic, Episcopal, Christian Science, and Native Presbyterian Church. There are thriving fraternal organizations, including: Elks, Moose, American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Scottish Rite Bodies, Masons, Eastern Star, Shrine Club, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, and many others. There are also active and progressive civic bodies, such as Women's Club, Chamber of Commerce, etc. The city government maintains and operates a public library at its own expense in the City Hall, which cost in the neighborhood of $25,000.

The weather in Juneau, being modified by the effect of the Japanese current, compares favorably to that of Seattle, Washington, and Portland, Oregon. The mean January temperature is 26.7 degrees and the mean July temperature is 57.4. There are entire winters when the temperature does not reach the zero point, and seldom does the temperature go that low. There are no cyclones or tornadoes, the nights are always comfortable, and there are few extremes of heat or cold. Work can be carried on out of doors practically the entire year.

Leading from Juneau are roads that present unequalled vistas of tumbling cataracts and silver-sheaved inland bays of green clad hills and valleys, of stately mountains and inaccessible peaks, of rugged cliffs and of perpetually snow-capped ranges. These roads are in almost constant use the entire year around by the three hundred automobiles owned by the people of Juneau.

Juneau's townsite is unsurpassed in beauty, but its beauty is only an introduction to the countless and endless vistas of great natural scenic beauty which abound on every side for the pleasure of the tourist and of the local resident. Unusual scenery, glorious summer days, comfortable weather, fishing and hunting, coupled with the conveniences of modern life and not of the frontier, offer opportunities for the development of a tourist industry that will place it first in rank among the great industries of the Territory. Not only can the tourist delight in all these, but his stay can be prolonged in the enjoyment of all ordinary out-of-doors sports, such as tennis, golf, baseball, swimming, boating, etc. All these only await the person with sufficient courage and capital to develop them. With its protected inland trip from Seattle to Juneau, neither is there any reason why the tourist industry of the Juneau district should not be annual instead of seasonal, as winter sports could readily be developed into drawing cards as great as those offered tourists by the summer.

Another industry, of which the present modern dairies located on the scenic Glacier Highway out of Juneau foretell the creation, is dairying. All kinds of berries and root vegetables grow profusely and abundantly, and they are of unusual quality. With the further development of those basic industries that create markets, all of the 125,000 acres of land available for agricultural purposes, and lying in the Juneau District, will undoubtedly be utilized. In Juneau is conducted an annual agricultural fair, which encourages not only the farmer, the prospector, the woodsman, the fisherman, but also the fox fur farmers, who have already built up an industry with an invested private capital of $500,000, and from which pelts and breeding stock will be sold during the year 1923 of the value of $1,000,000. The greater portion of this rapidly increasing industry is located in the vicinity of Juneau.

Juneau—with all of the conveniences and advantages of a modern city, offers unusual attractions for home life, and with its adjacent great natural resources offers inducements to the man of capital who wishes to enter the mining, timber, fishing, wood pulp and paper, or fur farming industry.
