PREFACE

Active, intelligent interest in the Territory of Alaska is manifest throughout the United States. Alaska is attaining the recognition it merits as a modern, progressive commonwealth, integral to the nation. Alert Americans realize, now, what those in Alaska long have known; that the Territory's future, politically and economically, is of increasing significance to the national welfare.

The prevailing interest, augmented by wider appreciation of Alaska's importance as a continental entity of the United States, has emphasized the long-existent need for a reference which not only delineates the activities contributing to current Alaskan development but which also identifies the residents most influential to the Territory's present progress. Alaskans themselves have joined to satisfy this requirement by furnishing the information included in this volume.

Confidence in Alaska's great destiny will be more generally perceived as this book is used, for it is a comprehensive reference which defines modern Alaska and its leaders to the world.

FACTS OF PUBLICATION

Both Who's Who in Alaska and the Alaska Business Index, included in this book, are first editions. Subsequent editions of each will be revised and reissued separately. The Alaska Business Index will be published annually, the 1948 edition to appear soon after the first of the year. Who's Who in Alaska is to be reissued biennially, and the next edition will be published early in 1949.

Listings in Who's Who in Alaska and in the Alaska Business Index are made without any remuneration. Those persons whose names appear in Who's Who in Alaska have not been solicited to purchase a copy of the book. Display advertisements in the Alaska Business Index are sold at standard, published rates, with the stipulation that no listing in the book is affected by advertising.

Who's Who in Alaska is compiled and published by Tewkesbury Publishers, as is the Alaska Business Index. The firm is not associated or affiliated with any other business group or organization.

The publishers cannot and do not guarantee the complete absence of errors and omissions, nor that all of the information furnished them is correct; hence, no responsibility can be, or is, assumed.

It is earnestly requested that any inaccuracy be brought to the attention of the publishers so that it may be corrected in the next edition.

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced in any form without permission in writing from the publishers, except by a reviewer who wishes to quote brief passages in connection with a review written for inclusion in a magazine or newspaper.

Copyright, 1947, in the United States of America and in the Dominion of Canada

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Publication of this book has been possible because of the co-operation and active encouragement extended by the people of Alaska. Residents in every section of the Territory have recorded much of the information compiled and included in this volume. Without their help, it would have been impossible to assemble these facts about contemporary Alaska and its prominent residents.

It is not practicable, as originally intended, to list each one of the many organizations, agencies, and individuals who have furnished information or assistance in connection with the preparation of this book. Among them, however, should be mentioned Mrs. Katherine T. Alexander, secretary to the Governor of Alaska; Robert B. Atwood, editor and publisher of the Anchorage Daily Times; Glenn Carrington of the Alaska Miners Association; J. T. Cunningham, superintendent of transportation for The Alaska Railroad; Robert N. De Armond, city editor of the Daily Alaska Fishing News at Ketchikan; Don C. Foster, general superintendent of the Alaska Native Service; B. D. Stewart, commissioner of the Alaska Department of Mines; and Lew M. Williams, Secretary of Alaska.

Much information and assistance has been given by traders, school teachers, clergymen, miners, roadhouse proprietors, postmasters, newspapermen, and government officials. To them, and to the hundreds of other Alaskans who assisted in the collection of these facts, the publishers extend sincere thanks.

The confidence demonstrated by progressive business and professional men in the value of the Alaska Business Index as an advertising medium is appreciatively acknowledged with the conviction that it will afford a commensurate return.

SELECTIVE PROCEDURE IN COMPILING WHO'S WHO IN ALASKA

Persons selected for listing in Who's Who in Alaska are those who maintain a home in the Territory and who are notable for worthy achievement. They are men and women engaged in various fields of useful and contributory endeavor and their attainments are such that they ordinarily are identified, not with a single locality, but with Alaska itself.

The noteworthy or meritorious accomplishments of the biographees is of especial attention in any research of Territorial activity and progress. Some are not, at present, subjects of normal inquiry or reference, but that they will be in the near future is extremely probable. To anticipate future research requirements, as well as to include accurately those persons of current interest, has required nearly a year of active, diligent investigation and careful compilation.

That criterion has been the sole standard of selection for Who's Who in Alaska and it will continue to be observed, as it has been in this edition, without regard to commercial obligation of any kind.

A notation has been made, in every instance known to the publishers, to personal sketches of biographees who died while this book was in process of publication.

Alaska at Dyea on "City of Seattle," established clothing store, Red Front; moved to Dawson, Y.T., Can., 1898, operated similar store, same name. In Seattle, Wash., on buying trip, 1899, observed popular reception of introduction of animated photographs then projected before large groups of standing spectators in a darkened store on 2nd Ave.; accordingly, purchased 1 projector and 4 1000-foot reels of film—equipment replaced after loss on north-bound "Cottage Queen," wrecked in Seymour Narrows; motion pictures subsequently introduced at Dawson, early 1900 (admission $1, 3 showings nightly, each show 15 or 20 minutes duration depending on his speed turning projector); sold Dawson bus., 1904, to attend Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, Mo.; went to St. Paul, Minn. (then best U.S. mfg. source for heavy-type clothing required for outdoor work in Alaska); returned to Terr. at Fairbanks (via Dawson), established Gross Clothing Store, introduced motion pictures there with nightly showings during Fairbanks residence (1904-10); sold Fairbanks bus. to attend Jeffries-Johnson engagement for heavyweight boxing championship at Reno, Nev., July 4, 1910; returned to Alaska at Nome, Fall of 1910, where introduced motion pictures with nightly showings until departure, Summer 1911. Recalls that neither plot nor continuity featured early motion pictures shown in North, but simply represented crying children, horseback riders, wind-blown flags, moving trains and vessels, etc. Established first "picture house" and introduced motion pictures in Ketchikan, Fall 1911, Coliseum Theater; within 2 yrs. established theaters, same name, at Wrangell, Juneau, Petersburg, Skagway, Haines, Douglas, Sitka; all in operation since, except Juneau, where 20th Century replaced theater destroyed by fire, 1940. Since establishment of Pioneers' Home at Sitka, 1913, has personally contributed and solicited money every yr. for cash donation to each resident, Christmas, with specification that each man spend his equal share exactly as he desires. Admission to Sitka theater is free to Pioneers' Home residents, with wheel chair and other aids provided when necessary. ALASKA

America's Last Frontier; the Great Land of Vast Distances and of Rich, Varied Resources; the Main Line of the New Trans-World Aviation Routes; a Territory of Beauty, Progress and Achievement.

STATISTICAL REVIEW

FORM OF GOVERNMENT—

Territorial (Organic Act, 1912, as amended).

The Governor and Secretary of Alaska are appointed for 4-year terms by the President of the United States with the advice and consent of the Senate.

The Territorial Legislature (bicameral, bipartisan) is elected. Each of the Territory's four judicial divisions is represented by four senators who serve 4-year terms. Proportional representation in the House of Representatives is for 2-year terms: 1st division, 8; 2nd division, 4; 3rd division, 7; 4th division, 5 (total legislature membership: 40).

The President of the United States appoints, for 4-year terms, four District Judges, four District Attorneys, and four U. S. Marshals, one for each judicial division.

Alaska is represented in the House of Representatives of the United States by a delegate elected for a 2-year term. He has no vote in the House.

LOCATION—

Alaska, the largest peninsula of the North American continent, is surrounded on three sides by water, and is connected with Canada by a land base of 600-mile width along the 141st meridian between the Arctic and the Pacific Oceans. Southeastern Alaska, the panhandle, is not a part of this peninsula but is, geographically, the coastal section of northern British Columbia.

AREA—

586,000 square miles, or about one-fifth the size of the United States.

POPULATION—(For complete population figures see page 318).

On October 1, 1939, 75,524, according to the Sixteenth Census. Recent estimates indicate that the total is now between 80,000 and 90,000.

INCORPORATED TOWNS—

Twenty-six towns are incorporated with the assessed valuation totaling $61,121,039.00. The rates of taxation range from 5 to 20 mills.

FINANCIAL—

Aggregate banking figures for the 15 Territorial and 4 national banks doing business on June 30, 1946, follow: capital, $1,145,000.00, surplus and net undivided profits, $2,347,125.77; deposits, $55,233,627.56.

FISHING—

The chief industry employs 24,000 people and produces $60,000,000.00 annually.

MINING—

In 1941—the last season unaffected by wartime restrictions—the minerals produced in Alaska were valued at $26,809,380. Gold leads other minerals in total value.

FUR TRAPPING AND FARMING—

Revenues derived from the gathering of furs in Alaska are of such importance as to rank third among the leading industries. Furs to the value of $2,300,000 are exported each year.

THE FORESTS—

The estimated stand of commercial timber in Alaska's two national forests follow:

Tongass National Forest - - - 78,500,000 feet, bd. measure
Chugach National Forest - - - 6,260,000 feet, bd. measure

The tree species with the relative importance of each in the total stand are—Western hemlock, 73%; Sitka spruce, 21%; western red cedar, 3%; Alaska cedar, 3%. The yearly cut in Southeastern Alaska is 35 million bd. feet, less than one-thirtieth the amount that could be cut.

AGRICULTURE—12,000 acres now developed.

CHURCHES—240 churches and missions, all denominations.

SCHOOLS—

During 1945-46, the Territory maintained 21 schools in incorporated towns and 45 outside incorporated towns. The Alaska Native Service maintained 103 elementary day schools and 3 vocational boarding schools.

HOSPITALS—24.

NEWSPAPERS—

5 letterpress dailies, 9 letterpress weeklies, 1 letterpress published semi-weekly, 3 tri-weekly.

RAILROADS—

2: The Alaska Railroad, running 470.8 miles between Seward and Fairbanks; The White Pass & Yukon Route, 111 miles of rail between Skagway and Whitehorse, Y.T., Canada.

THE ALASKA HIGHWAY—

Only highway connecting Alaska with the Canadian road system, and thence with the U.S. road system, begins at Dawson Creek, B.C., extending to Big Delta, Alaska, joining the Richardson Highway and continuing to Fairbanks, a distance of 1523 miles.

ALASKA ROAD SYSTEM—

3 principal roads, the Richardson Highway between Valdez and Fairbanks, the Glenn Highway between Anchorage and a point on the Richardson Highway near Gulkana, and the Steese Highway between Fairbanks and Circle.

NATIONAL PARKS AND MONUMENTS—

1 national park, Mt. McKinley National Park; 4 national monuments, Glacier Bay, Sitka, Old Kasaan, and Katmai.

NATIONAL FORESTS—

2, comprising a total area of 20,880,000 acres. The Tongass National Forest—16,080,000 acres—covers most of Southeastern Alaska, extending from Dixon Entrance northward to White Pass and Glacier Bay. The Chugach National Forest—4,800,000 acres—embraces most of the land along the shores of Prince William Sound, and also includes the east half of the Kenai Peninsula and the more distant Afognak Island.

HISTORY

Soon after the 1741 voyage of Vitus Bering, Russian merchants established trading posts in Alaska, but it was not until American sailors engaged in trade between New England, China, and the northwest coast, did U.S. relations with Alaska begin (most authorities say the name "Alaska" is an English corruption of the Aleut word "Al-ay-ek-sha," believed to mean "The Great Land"). Actual penetration of the interior by Americans did not take place until the late 1890's.

William H. Seward, the American Secretary of State, was instrumental in the purchase of Alaska from Russia for $7,200,000, and the American flag was hoisted at Sitka on October 18, 1867.

For many years the Federal Government took little interest in the development of the Territory, and not until 1884 was a civil government established for Alaska by congressional act.

Gold was discovered in the Canadian Klondike in 1897, found on the beach at Nome in 1899, near Fairbanks in 1902, in the Iditarod district in 1908, and in the Ruby area in 1907-10. The first discoveries and the influx of settlers created a need for additional laws. Congress in 1889 and 1900 provided for a code of civil and criminal law, and in 1903 passed a homestead act. An act in 1906 empowered Alaska to elect a delegate in Congress.

Salmon fishing increased, modern mining methods resulted in a surer rate of development, and the boom period began drawing to an end. In 1915 the ground was broken for the Alaska Agricultural College and School of Mines—now the University of Alaska. In July, 1923, President Harding drove the golden spike at Tanana Bridge, opening The Alaska Railroad. New farm land was opened and permanent agricultural residents settled on Kenai Peninsula and in the Matanuska Valley. In all towns of any size at least one newspaper was established, public libraries and churches began to dot the Territory, the school systems were extended to almost every settlement, and the airplane revolutionized transportation.

Belatedly recognizing the strategic importance of Alaska as a northerly and westerly outpost in the nation's defense system, in 1938 the Federal government began to expand its military establishment in the Territory, and during the war Alaska became a vitally important link in the new air routes to Russia.

Today Alaskans are looking forward to a great influx of prospective settlers, including many ex-servicemen to whom Alaska appears to offer opportunities in an undeveloped, sparsely populated part of our country.

A BRIEF REVIEW OF THE CENTERS OF POPULATION

(For complete population figures see page 318)

ANCHORAGE, the largest city in Alaska, is situated on the south shore of Knik Arm at the head of Cook Inlet, 114 miles from Seward on The Alaska Railroad. Before the war it had a population of 3,500, but exceptional growth was induced with the establishment a few years ago of a large military base—the U.S. Army's Alaskan Department headquarters. The town is also the headquarters of the Federal District Court for the Third Division and of the Civil Aeronautics Administration, as well as a focal point on world air routes. The population is now estimated to be not less than 10,000. Anchorage is a center for quartz and placer gold mining, coal mining, fishing, canning, farming and trapping.

COLLEGE, three miles west of Fairbanks on The Alaska Railroad, consists of the University of Alaska and the Agricultural Experiment Station.

CORDOVA is situated on the eastern shore of Prince William Sound, 1,599 miles from Seattle. The town was the ocean terminus and headquarters of the Copper River & Northwestern Railway until the road was abandoned in 1938. For 27 years, 1911-1938, Cordova was the distributing center for the rich, but now exhausted, Kennecott copper field. Today its chief industries are salmon, clam and crab canning and herring packing.

CRAIG, located on the west coast of Prince of Wales Island, seven miles south of Klawock and 40 miles north of Hydaburg, is an important center for Alaska fishing fleets which outfit here with fuel and provisions. Logging and trapping are winter occupations.

DOUGLAS was built during the operation of the Treadwell Mine which produced more than $65,000,000 in gold during 36 years' operation before a cave-in occurred in 1917 and flooded the workings. Douglas and Juneau, on opposite shores at the head of navigation on Gastineau Channel, are connected by a steel suspension bridge built in 1935. A salmon cannery furnishes seasonal labor, and boat building on a small scale is carried on here. The town's night clubs are freely patronized by Juneau merry-makers.

EAGLE is ten miles from the international boundary on the left bank of the Yukon. It is the first town in Alaska to be reached on the Yukon from Canada, and is the supply center for a large gold placer area.

FAIRBANKS is the northern terminus of The Alaska Railroad and the Richardson Highway, the southwestern terminus of the Steese Highway, and since it is located almost exactly in the geographical center of Alaska it is a major point on the Territory's commercial air lines. During the war more than 5,000 airplanes were ferried to Russia via Fairbanks. Gold mining is the principal industry of the district, and the United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Company operates a fleet of dredges on the nearby creeks. Lumbering and logging are important, and farming is carried on. Fairbanks is the headquarters of the Fourth Judicial Division.

FLAT, on the Iditarod River, is a mining camp and center of placer gold mining in the Iditarod section. The summer population reaches 400.

HAINES, located on Lynn Canal at the mouth of the Chilkat River, is the outlet for the Porcupine mining district in Alaska and the Rainy Hollow mining area in British Columbia. It is connected with the interior of Alaska by a new motor road, constructed as a part of the Alaska Highway project. Chilkoot Barracks, until 1940 the only U.S. Army post in the Territory, adjoins the town.

HYDABURG is the principal town on Princes of Wales Island, the home of most of the Haida Indians in Alaska. Fishing is the chief industry.

HYDER is at the head of Portland Canal at the extreme southern end of Alaska. It is just across the international boundary line from Stewart, B.C., and is the American center of the Portland Canal mining district.

JUNEAU, the capital of Alaska, is at the foot of the steep slopes of Mount Juneau and Mount Roberts, on the edge of Gastineau Channel. The area is Alaska's greatest lode mining region, the location of the world famous Alaska Juneau gold mine, which produced more than 12,000 tons of ore daily before the wartime curtailment of mining operations. The Alaska Juneau mine is still closed, waiting until equipment and men become available, and until operating costs decrease. The Territorial Legislature and U.S. District Court meet in the Federal and Territorial Building erected in 1931, and the Territorial Government departments and most of the Federal agencies in Alaska are headquartered here.

KETCHIKAN, the first Alaska port usually visited by tourists, is an important fishing center on the west coast of Revillagigedo Island, 757 miles from Seattle, Wash. More salmon is canned here than in any city in the world—the canneries packing from 300,000 to 500,000 48-can cases annually. The town's small boat harbor is crowded with the halibut fleet and the salmon-trolling fleet, both of which use the city as an outfitting point and a market. The halibut vessels catch 20 to 30 million of the 45 million pounds of halibut that are landed annually on the Pacific Coast. Marine ways, machine shops and other establishments devoted to the maintenance of small craft do a thriving business.

KLAWOCK, a village predominately made up of Tlingit Indians, is located on the west coast of Prince of Wales Island a few miles from Craig. The principal industry is fishing.

From the time KODIAK was first established in 1792 by Baranof, the Russian governor of Alaska, until huge construction crews began to swarm in to build a U.S. Naval Air Station, Kodiak was nothing more than a small village with less than 450 residents. Today it is the largest town in southwestern Alaska, with a population of some 1,200. There are many salmon canneries in the vicinity, foxes are bred, stock is raised, and hunting parties equipped. Kodiak is located on an island of the same name, 200 miles southeast of Seward.

METLAKATLA, on Annette Island 15 miles south of Ketchikan, is a cooperative Indian village. Fishing, fish canning, boat building and lumbering and logging are the important industries. The cannery, sawmill, hydroelectric plant, and water system are the common property of the village. There are four general merchandise stores, a marine ways, a cabinet shop and two fountain lunches in the village.

NENANA, on The Alaska Railroad, is 60 miles from Fairbanks on the south bank of the Tanana River at its confluence with the Nenana River. It is a rail terminus for the larger river steamers plying the Tanana and Yukon Rivers and is the distributing point for a considerable portion of central Alaska bordering on these two rivers. The town comes into national notice annually as the point at which the historic ice-breaking pool is decided.

NOME, headquarters for the Second Judicial Division, is on the south side of Seward Peninsula on the Bering Sea, 2,300 miles from Seattle. In winter the port is ice bound, enabling steamers to call at the town only five months of the year, so the quickest and most convenient way of reaching Nome is by plane from Fairbanks. The town dates back to the early gold rush days and is still the center of a rich gold placer district. In addition, the Natives of King Island and Little Diomedea Island come here to fish and barter for their winter supplies.

PALMER is the civic center of Matanuska, which was begun as a government experimental farming project in 1935. It is situated 6 miles from Matanuska on the branch railroad line, 50 miles from Anchorage via the highway. The town is the headquarters of the government's Alaska Rural Rehabilitation Corporation and of the farmers' own Matanuska Valley Farmers Cooperating Association, which now manages the Colony. The land and climate combine to make it a fine farming, truck farming and cattle raising country. Its close proximity to Anchorage makes a daily market for its products.

PELICAN is located on Lisianski Inlet on Chichagof Island. It was incorporated into a city in September, 1939. It has a large cold storage plant where several well known fresh fish buyers have representatives, a hydroelectric plant, a new school, cocktail lounges and grocery stores.

PETERSBURG, a modern fishing town, is on Mitkof Island, half way between Ketchikan and Juneau. Halibut, salmon, trout, herring, crabs, clams and the famous Petersburg shrimp are taken in these waters. There is a considerable amount of fur farming done on the small surrounding islands, and the University of Alaska's fur-farming experimental station is located here.

PLATINUM is at the foot of Red Mountain on Goodnews Bay, a little south of the mouth of the Kuskokwim River. It was here in 1936 that the most outstanding development in the placer platinum-mining industry in the United States took place. Today the largest development program in the area is that of the Goodnews Bay Mining Co. Platinum has a general store, the Platinum Commercial Co. (operated by the Goodnews Bay Mining Co.), and Berg's Roadhouse.

PORT ALEXANDER is a fishing village on the south point of Baranof Island. While this village is listed as having a population of less than 100, hundreds of trolling boats crowd its commodious harbor during the fishing season.

RUBY is on the south bank of the Yukon River, opposite the Melozi River, about 120 miles west of Tanana. It is the trade center for a large gold-mining area and is connected with Long and Poorman by wagon road.

SELDOVIA is a town on the southwestern shore of Kenai Peninsula on Kachemak Bay. It is the only landlocked harbor between Seward and Anchorage large enough to accommodate ocean-going vessels, making it the central port of distribution for Cook Inlet towns. The principal industries are fishing and canning, but extensive lignite coal beds found along the shores of the Inlet promise the development of an additional industry.

SEWARD, at the north end of Resurrection Bay, just off the Gulf of Alaska, is the ocean terminus of The Alaska Railroad, and the gateway to the rich interior. In November of 1941 a fire razed a large part of the business district, but as is often the case, the buildings were replaced with modern structures and the town took on an air of brisk modernity. Seward does a heavy business in freight handling and is the outfitting point for big-game hunters on Kenai Peninsula and Kodiak Island.

SITKA, the former capital of Russian America, is located midway on the west coast of Baranof Island, 980 miles northwest of Seattle. The town is the oldest in southeastern Alaska, and is rich in historic interest. The principal industry is fishing. During a season nearly 1,000 boats deliver at Sitka some 7,500,000 pounds of fish, valued at three-quarters of a million dollars. The Alaska Pioneers' Home, established here in 1913, is maintained by Territorial funds for the benefit of aged Alaskans. The Sheldon Jackson School, maintained by the Presbyterian Church as an industrial school for Natives, is also located here. Junior college courses were added to the curricula a few years ago.

SKAGWAY, a famous town of gold rush days, is at the head of Lynn Canal on Taiya Inlet at the mouth of the Skagway River. It is the ocean terminus of the White Pass & Yukon Route, a port of entry for Canada, and also a supply point for miners and trappers on the Yukon and Klondike districts. Skagway boomed during World War II when it became the distributing point for supplies used on the Alaska Highway and the Canol oil project.

UNALASKA is located at the head of Iliuliuk Harbor across a narrow body of water from Dutch Harbor. Today its major income is from the vessels that anchor at the naval base. Herring, halibut and cod fishing is carried on by the Natives, and fur is raised on neighboring islands.

VALDEZ is at the head of Port Valdez, the most northern fiord of Prince William Sound, about 1,600 miles by direct steamer line from Seattle. The town is the coast terminus of the Richardson Highway, which connects with The Alaska Railroad and Steese Highway at Fairbanks, with the Glenn Highway at Gulkana, and with the Alaska Highway at Big Delta. Gold mining and motor transportation are the town's principal industries.

WRANGELL, the second port of call on the northbound route from Seattle, is located on the north side of Wrangell Island, 89 miles northwest of Ketchikan. It has a large landlocked harbor, open all year, and the U.S. Government recently greatly improved the inner harbor, making it an ideal anchorage for small boats. It serves as the ocean terminal for steamers plying the Stikine River to Telegraph Creek, B.C. The principal industries are lumbering, fishing, and fur farming.

★ "Alaska is a grand place to live, work and play. We have more than 40 aircraft in our fleet, including seven DC-3's and two DC-4's. When you come to Alaska fly with me!"

Route of the Starliners

LOWER YUKON, BRISTOL BAY AND KUSKOKWIM RIVER POINTS

Day after day, throughout the year, planes of the Ray Petersen Flying Service maintain regular schedules to towns and communities throughout Greater Alaska.

This record of dependable, continuous service to a great area—equal to that of Idaho and Montana combined—is attributed primarily to three factors: experience, personnel, and equipment.

Eleven years of operation by an expert staff provided with modern, completely-equipped aircraft all contribute to the eminent position which this pioneer organization holds today in Alaska's air carrier industry.

This Man belongs in "Who's Who in ALASKA"

He's "Mr. Pan American"— a friendly fellow who has been serving Alaska Territory for the past fourteen years. You may know him as a ticket agent, a pilot, or some other employee of The System of the Flying Clippers. In whatever capacity he serves, he's doing a progressive job . . . helping to get more Clippers into service . . . to lower fares whenever possible . . . speeding passengers, mail and Clipper Express to a dozen points in the Territory where Pan American Flying Clippers are the fast, dependable contact with Outside. Next time you're traveling, next time you're sending a parcel or ordering one, remember — it's quicker by Clipper.

THE modern gold dredges operating in the Fairbanks district symbolize an era of progress which began more than forty years ago when stampedeers worked the nearby creeks with hand-rockers and small sluice boxes.

During all that period of development the First National Bank has been recognized as a dependable institution offering complete banking service to Interior Alaska.

Serving
Alaska Business...

Business requires specialized banking facilities. This bank is closely allied with Alaska banking institutions in the growth and development of Alaska business.

THE PACIFIC NATIONAL BANK of SEATTLE

"The Bank of Business"

Second at Marion Seattle (11)

Member F.D.I.C.

You will find it to your advantage, as so many of you already have done, to make the National Bank of Commerce both your friend and business headquarters in Seattle.

Because of our abounding faith in Alaska, we of the National Bank of Commerce for years have maintained an Alaska Department, enabling us to be in the forefront of advancement of this great Territory.

We also maintain one of the most extensive correspondent banking relationships that any bank enjoys in Alaska, affording a closeness which is mutually effective in developing her vast resources.

We participate very substantially in Alaska business because an experienced staff with intimate knowledge of conditions there has the "know-how" to render unusually effective service.

Craftsmanship

● In the construction of your small boat, you want the same high degree of marine craftsmanship, the same professional attention to detail, that is required in the building of every commercial vessel.

● Years of experience in designing and building small craft up to 20-foot length for Alaskan waters is evidenced in the workmanship of Aaron Roberts, boatbuilder, specializing in skiffs, dories and lifeboats.

● Near the Juneau boat harbor at 731 D Street, just off Willoughby Avenue, the Aaron Roberts shop again welcomes the men of the fishing fleet who make the shop their Juneau meeting place.

IT'S BOATS LIKE THESE...

Douglas-built boats join the Alaska fleet with a proud heritage of design and building skill and quality material all combined to insure superior performance in Northern waters.

It is respect for superior marine craftsmanship in seiners, trollers, and cabin cruisers by the men who know, first-hand, the requirements of boats in the North Pacific—it is their recognition which distinguishes a Douglas-built boat as a leader of the fleet.

TWO GREAT STAMPEDES

The Klondike—1897-98

The Alaska Highway—1947-48

THOUSANDS are destined to join the modern "Rush" to Alaska over the great, new Alaska Highway. And unlike the stampede of 50 years ago, today's travelers in Greater Alaska are afforded every type of modern transportation facility.

University Bus Lines, in continuing to serve Alaska's residents and visitors, will maintain the standards which have contributed to its position in Territorial transportation.

First to operate a commercial bus over the Alaska Highway and first to make a commercial trip by bus from Fairbanks to Seattle, University Bus Lines is prominent on Alaska's other principal highways, maintaining schedules to:

MUSEUM and ART GOODS

The Most Interesting Shop in Alaska

With the largest commercial collection of Alaskan curiosities: Native made baskets, Eskimo carved ivory, totem poles, pictures. The largest stock of nugget jewelry in the world. The largest for sale collection of Sydney Laurence paintings. Famous "Twok" pictures of Eskimo life. Etchings on reindeer hide. A complete line of Eskimo-made Parkas for adults and children, for sport and also, for evening wear. Our business has been built upon honor. Your money back without quibble if you are not satisfied. If you go for the ride tell your driver or conductor to drop you at The Nugget Shop: five minutes from your boat.

The history of the Tongass Trading Company plays an integral part in the history of Ketchikan and Southeastern Alaska.

The store had its inception at the turn of the century, way back when fortune seekers came North in quest of gold and furs.

Tongass through the passing of years has kept pace with the increasing needs of the rapidly developing country and is equipped to fulfill all needs in marine and heavy hardware, builders' supplies, commercial and sport fishing gear, clothing, furniture, housewear, fine groceries, and sporting goods.

Model 51, tools hanging in the guide, ready to start a hole. Telescoping steel derrick is folded down for travel. Powerful, durable crawler chassis enables it to move over the most difficult terrain.

Constructed to drive through solid rock, the Keystone Model 51, all-steel, crawler-mounted drill is designed to give Northern operators, at lowest cost, the greatest footage of borehole through frozen ground.

Long, powerful strokes deliver a shattering, one-ton blow once every second. Specially patented springs and recoil cylinders eliminate vibration, strain, or stress at any point of this low-cost, all-steel Keystone Drill to insure economic operation under the most grueling service.

THE AMERICAN FUR INDUSTRY

welcomes this directory for its accuracy as the most extensive reference ever published for the trade in Alaska.

The next edition, to appear early next year, will be even more detailed.

Your advertisement in the Alaska Business Index, 1948, will reach the trade—buyers and dealers in Nome and New York, Sitka and Cincinnati—and at a rate far more reasonable than any comparable medium offering such wide, all-year coverage.

Rate cards on request.

WHOLESALE PRICE ON MERCHANDISE
OFFERED ALASKANS*No Retail Rates Quoted in Former Northerner's New Cost-Slashing Catalogue

Wholesale prices on all groceries, clothing, household fixtures and furnishings are offered Alaskans by Don Adler, long-time Territorial resident now living at Redmond, Washington.

Price lists of a national wholesale house are airmailed free, on request, to Alaskans who select items at quoted rates and notify Adler. He ships the articles directly to the consumer.

ANY RETAIL STORE ITEM

The lists include all goods usually sold in retail stores, Adler emphasizes in urging residents of the Territory to write him for catalogues and detailed information.

Wholesale lists will be airmailed, free, to anyone who writes Don Adler, Redmond, Washington.

Adler is well known in Interior Alaska. He resided in the Territory for many years and, veteran of two wars, he is past commander of the Alaska department, American Legion.

AFFORDS HIGH SAVINGS

Alaskans can purchase superior grades of foods and merchandise far cheaper under his plan, Adler says, than the cost of ordinary brands in Pacific Coast stores.

"Eliminating ordinary high merchandising costs saves up to 70 per cent on many standard articles," Adler declares. "Houesholders and small merchants, by pooling their limited individual orders, can also save on freight rates."

ALL ALASKANS ARE WELCOME ALL OF THE TIME

THURMAN RIDENOUR, Mgr.

Where Alaskans Meet

The Baranof HOTEL

Jack Fletcher
MANAGER

Juneau, Alaska

Dear Future Guest:

Alaska is entering an unprecedented era in its colorful history. With confidence and with vision, residents of the Territory are actively engaged in transforming a vast frontier to the great empire it is destined to be.

Streamlined travel services have enhanced the position of Juneau, capital city, as cross-roads of Alaska. And because the Baranof Hotel is the finest in the North, it typifies this period of progress.

Of course, with Alaskans the Baranof is a tradition, just as it is to those who knew the Territory as a strategic area in time of war and who are now returning to contribute to the unparalleled peacetime development. Hundreds more who travel through each week are here for the first time to identify themselves with the future of Alaska.

As they have, you will come to know the Baranof as one of the great, modern hotels. It is much more than the Alaskan atmosphere, or the excellent facilities and the luxurious appointments emphasized by the rugged aspect of the surrounding scene. It's the heartfelt "come-as-you-are" welcome which we extend you--the same genuine expression of hospitality so typical of the country since Gold Rush days.

Sincerely,

Jack Fletcher.

"THE HOST OF ALASKA"

in'con·tro·vert'i·ble

in·dis'pu·ta·ble

in·du'bi·ta·ble

ir·ref'ra·ga·ble

Those adjectives come up in a search for words to emphasize the certainty of a superior return for the prominent firms advertising in the Alaska Business Index next edition.

Because the 1948 directory, now in preparation with complete canvass of Alaska, will be extremely more detailed than was practicable in this first edition. As an established, trustworthy reference, the 1948 Alaska Business Index will be used with justified confidence by Alaskans and alert business executives throughout the nation. Their respect for the book's accuracy will be reflected in their acceptance of advertisers' data.

Advertising rates in the 1948 Alaska Business Index will be in the same moderate proportion to this edition's. Complete information will be mailed immediately upon request.

OUTLETS in the Territory's three principal cities—Ketchikan, Juneau, and Anchorage—enable the Alaska Broadcasting System to offer, through one medium, radio coverage of the entire Territory and direct connecting facilities with United States networks. Combining to give this powerful, inclusive Alaskan coverage are KTKN at Ketchikan, KINY Juneau, and KFDQ Anchorage.

station is KFQD ANCHORAGE

FIRST AND FOREMOST—Serving the heaviest populated area in Alaska, comprising 90 per cent of the Territory's white population, KFQD is Alaska's oldest station, having been on the air since May, 1924.

EXCESS PURCHASING POWER—Statistical reports show, "Purchasing capacity of Alaskans is more than three times greater than the same population in the States." KFQD listeners surpass ordinary Alaskan standards because they represent such a wide group of Territorial industries.

RICH, VARIED MARKET—Anchorage is headquarters for many federal functions: Alaska Department of U. S. Army; U. S. Department of Interior; Civil Aeronautics Administration; Alaska Communications System; and the government-owned Alaska Railroad. Private payrolls are augmented by Anchorage's importance as center—geographically and economically—of Alaska's greatest industrial activity: Mining (gold, platinum, coal); North Pacific fishing industry; Fur farms and trappers' market; Matanuska Valley and Cook Inlet agricultural development; and hub of Alaska's highway and airways systems.

LISTENER CONFIDENCE—Over the 23 years of its operation KFQD has become an outstanding Alaskan institution, accepted by its audience with personal regard and confidence. Much of the station's success—many accounts are over 16 years old—is due to the fact that its staff, as long-time residents, enjoy a wide personal acquaintance. Bill Wagner, owner and general manager, came to KFQD 11 years ago after a decade spent in every part of Alaska as a federal radio engineer. His pioneer contributions and later developments to Alaska's radio industry have attracted the recognition of national communications leaders who have observed the development of KFQD from a low-powered, part-time station, to its present strength and prominence as the Territory's busiest station covering Alaska's largest market.

OWN A HOME IN ALASKA

AUDREY CUTTING

REAL ESTATE

McCUTCHEON BUILDING
315 FOURTH AVENUE, BLACK 375

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

The greatest object toward which the thrift of a family can be directed is the ownership of a home. The home owner, everywhere always, is recognized as a substantial member of the community—one who owns a part of it and who takes an active interest in its government.

And in Alaska, today, home ownership has an even greater significance than the personal independence and security it affords. For the greatest contributions to Alaska's contemporary development have been made by its permanent residents. The future fortunes of Alaska will continue to be made by those who live in the Territory and who take pride in the progress of Alaska because it is their home.

Life in Alaska begins by owning your own home, living in it, and developing it. It insures your own future, and assures you an important place in Alaska's promising destiny.

If you're a member of the fraternity of sportsmen who take keen pleasure in hunting as one of the finest sports, write me about Mentasta Lodge.

Provisioned and completely supplied with equipment for all hunting and fishing requirements, Mentasta Lodge is not a tourist resort, but an ideal headquarters in the center of one of the great game regions on this continent.

On Mentasta Lake, the lodge and newly-built cabins are comfortable and furnished with all conveniences. Mentasta Native Village, across the lake, provides guides who are truly professional hunters.

If you do hunt and fish, you have my assurance that you'll like the Mentasta country. I'll be glad to write you a letter with complete information. Airmail inquiries to:

MONEY GROWS ON TREES!

Certainly the vast forests of Alaska, with their millions of feet of standing timber, constitute one of the greatest sources of Alaska's wealth.

These forests of hemlock, Sitka spruce, and Alaska cedar mean more than money . . . they represent homes for the future . . . pulp and paper mills . . . seaworthy boats . . . material for hundreds of the Territory's industrial and commercial concerns.

As leader in Alaska's lumber industry for more than 30 years, the Juneau Lumber Mills, Inc., will continue to convert "green gold" into capital for Alaska. And, in contributing to the development of this great resource, the Juneau Lumber Mills will maintain its support of all government policies of forest conservation, fire prevention, selective cutting, and tree farming . . . policies of reforestation which will insure the continuation, indefinitely, of this great Alaskan wealth.

POPULATION

OF CITIES, TOWNS, VILLAGES AND OTHER PLACES*

Alaska is divided into four judicial divisions. In the table below, a Roman numeral, in parentheses, follows the name of each community and indicates the judicial division in which the community is located. The Oct. 1, 1939, official census figure is given (the latest), and for principal towns the present estimated civilian population follows the abbreviation "est." Towns listed in blackface type are incorporated.

Driving to Alaska ?

Don't Forget a Shovel!

You should take a shovel . . . and other tools . . . if you are among the thousands in the United States planning to drive over the Alaska Highway.

going to Alaska . . . as a prospective trucker . . . or as a tourist . . . your way will require unusual advance now for careful, intelligent planning to the Alaska Highway. You will only for travel through Canada . . . night stops . . . eating places . . . e and how much it costs . . . the automobiles, and for trucks. The way specifically lists this information to insure a successful journey.

and many excellent photographs, Highway is sponsored by Tewkesbury and accurately prepared as their Index.
